

Westech Field Days

Webb Black Simmentals take pride in breeding easy doing, structurally sound carcass bulls showing continuity of breed type. They are stacked full of red meat without losing fat cover and wrapped in a moderate frame.

Visit us at the Westech Field Days, Barcaldine Saleyards, Tuesday September 9 and Wednesday September 10, 2014

Call in and meet our farm manager, Ben Coad, who will be on site at Westech to answer any questions relating to the Webb Black Simmentals herd. M: 0428 248 076

Sire of Webb Dew It Right H640

St Pauls Captain sire of Webb Captain H645

Testimonial - Geoff Urquhart, "Killara", Banana, Queensland

"I run 600 Droughtmaster and Brahman cows, producing everything from weaners straight off the cows to feeder steers and the Jap Ox market. The market was paying 20c/kg for black-coated cattle and this convinced me to use a black bull. I saw the Webb Black bulls at the Charleville sale and went to the stud's field day to look at the female herd.

I liked the structural soundness, weight for age and temperament of the Black Simmental cattle. Their mobility is also important in our country. I bought four bulls in November followed by a further two as there was no point in doing things by half. One of my neighbours had used a Black Simmental bull with the first calves on the ground three months ago, and he is over the moon with them. I have also noticed a lot of Simbrah calves in the markets with a really good finish. I'm looking for that extra yield in the calves and will probably target the weaner market. The Webb Black bulls have handled the conditions here really well, with two 12-month old bulls going straight to work in 70 females."

Testimonial - Strathleigh Black Simmentals

"Many of our clients are reporting excellent results by using Black Simmental and Sim Angus bulls, producing calves with more muscle and weight. Our clients mainly target the weaner, domestic supermarket or 400-500kg feedlot steer markets. The Black Simmental calves have plenty of thickness and growth, plus hybrid vigour. We have bought three Webb Black bulls in 2013 and one in 2014 to use as sires in our own stud. There are now calves on the ground and they are looking quite promising. We selected the Webb Black bulls for their muscle, frame size, quiet temperament and balance of EPDs."
Alex and Anne Robson, Strathleigh Black Simmentals, Attunga, NSW

Testimonial - Pinnaroo Pastoral Company

"The Angus-Simmental calf, like a first-cross Merino, has a bigger body-fame. It's a larger beast with more capacity and carcass, giving a greater return on investment through cents per kilogram. Everyone wants more bang for their buck but you must produce what the market recognizes and values. When it comes to calving, the Angus has the calving ease and the Simmentals with their bigger frame and pelvis, complement each other. I believe Webb Blacks are on the right track with their sire selection and breeding bulls suited to my long term goals, a great partnership with a win-win for both parties."
Phil Newton, Pinnaroo Pastoral Company, Mansfield, VIC
